

Discover the Benefits of Becoming a Community Solar Subscriber

As the final stages are nearly complete on a community solar project in Madison County, residents have an opportunity to participate in community solar and save 25% on their home electricity bill.

The Edwardsville Community Foundation has partnered with Summit Ridge Energy, one of the nation's leading commercial solar companies, to offer Madison County residents who are Ameren customers a reduction on their energy bill simply by subscribing to the local community solar project.

Community solar projects are beneficial to residents when it is impractical, too expensive, or otherwise unfeasible to install solar panels on their property. For those who subscribe to community solar projects, credits are applied to their energy bills to lower their electricity costs.

There is no change in how the electricity flows or is billed and it does not require changing electricity providers.
